

A Sad Anniversary: 3 Years of Khan Failing the FTC

Lina Khan's tenure at the U.S. Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has been marked by sidelining American consumers, poor leadership, and wasteful mismanagement.

1 More Americans Are Defrauded

More Americans Are Defrauded

When Lina Khan took over in 2021, consumers saw an increase in fraud, identity theft and other essential consumer protections the FTC is tasked with overseeing.

Americans are paying the price.

2 Poor Leadership

Poor Leadership

Chair Khan has driven even employee satisfaction off a cliff.

From 2021-2022, 25% of leadership attorneys left and 71 non-leadership senior attorneys departed.

3 Wasted Taxpayer Dollars

Wasted Taxpayer Dollars

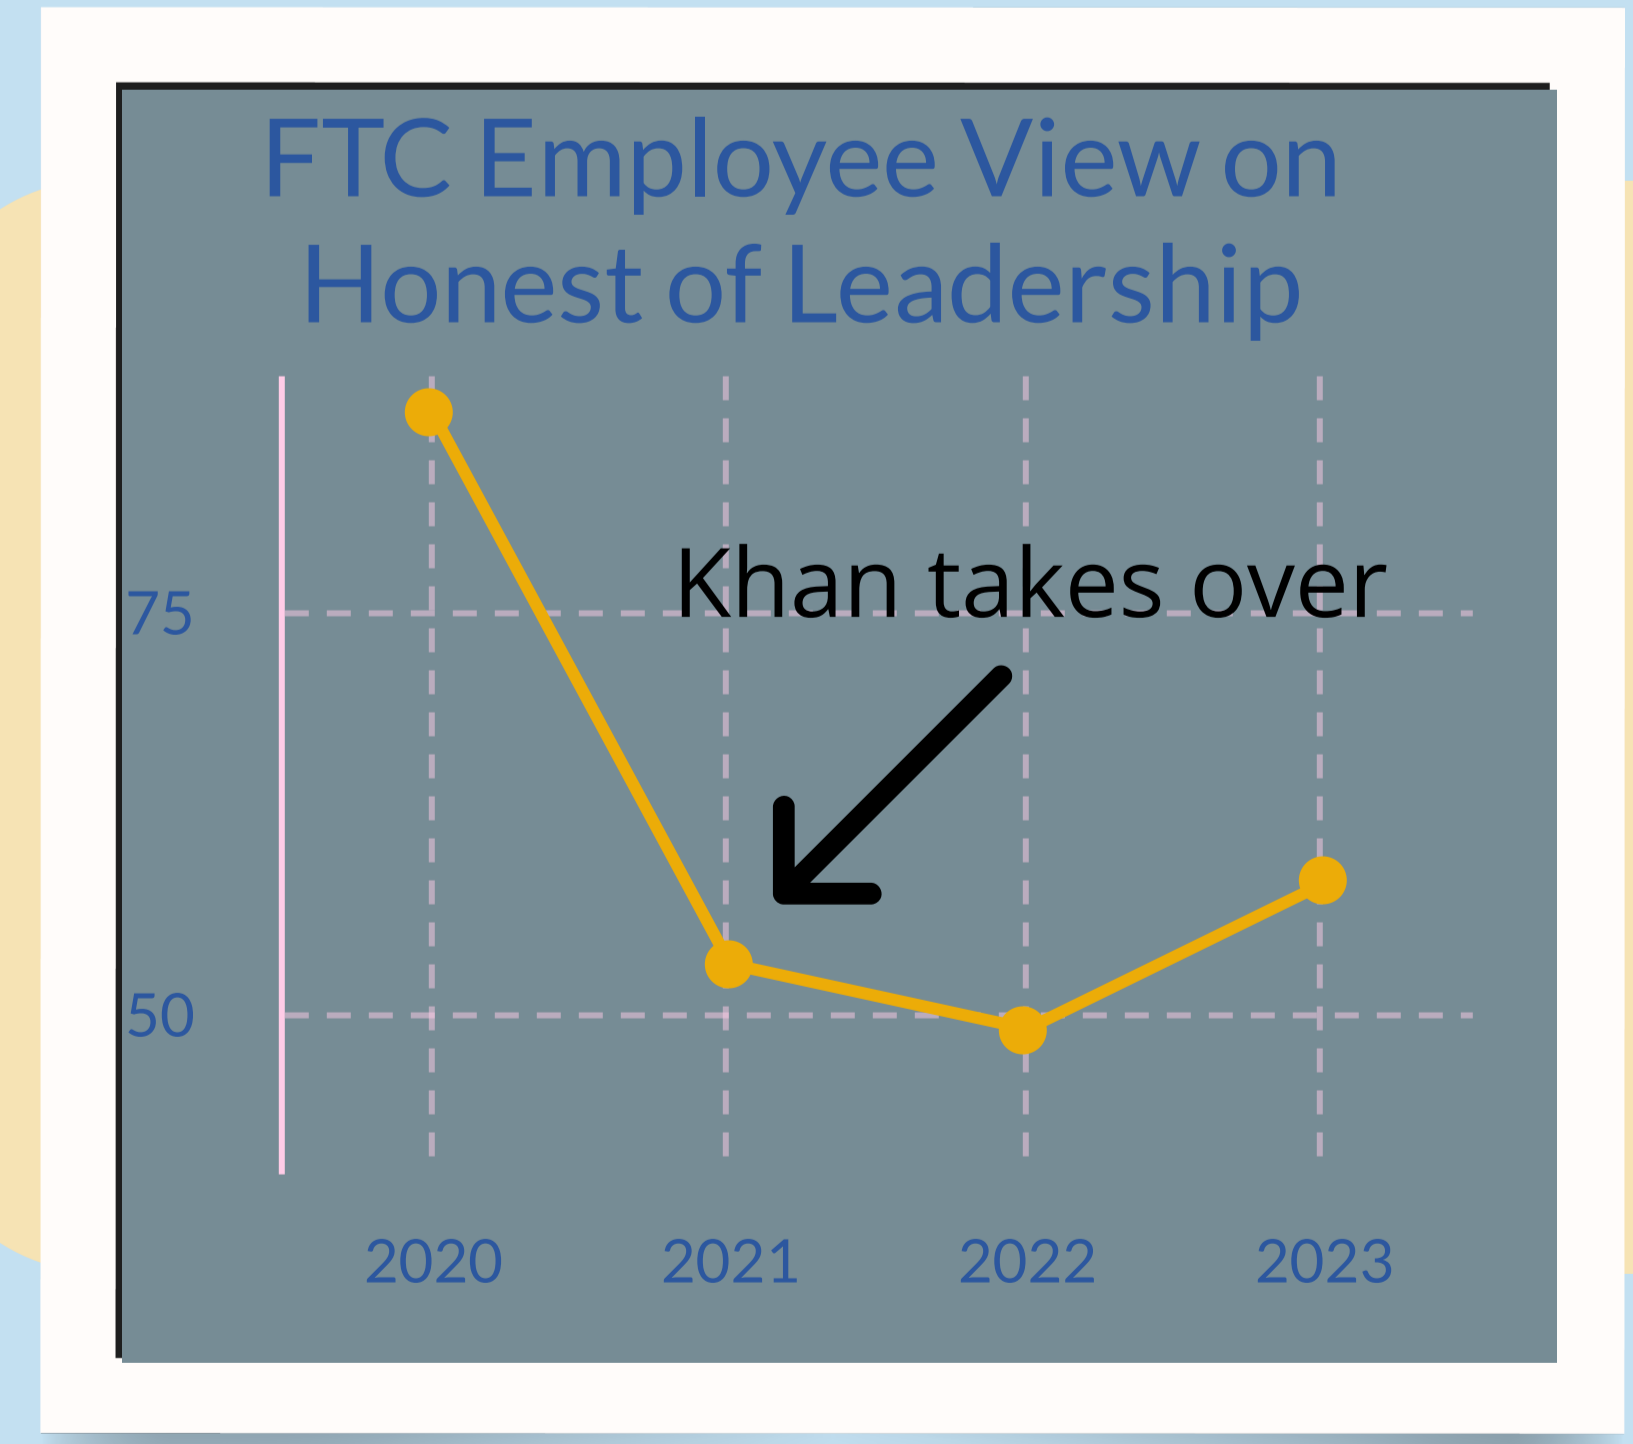

Under Chair Lina Khan's leadership, the agency has neglected its duties to help consumers and respect taxpayers by instead pursuing losing crusades that wasted much of the FTC's $430 million FY2023 budget.

But it wasn't enough. Khan tried to extract more taxpayer money, requesting $590 million for FY2024—a whopping 37% increase.

4 Untrustworthy Leadership

Untrustworthy Leadership

Since Chair Khan has taken over, even the FTC's own experienced staff no longer considers its leadership honest or trustworthy.

Time for Khan to Go

The FTC must throw out this progressive agenda and return to its focus on protecting consumers to ensure America remains competitive and innovative.
