TOP LINE:

Voters noted that major U.S. tech companies are driving cutting edge innovation and are key to America's global leadership

Americans want the Trump administration to focus on keeping inflation down.

THE BIGGEST ISSUES FACING THEM TODAY ARE:

- Cost of living
- Immigration
- Jobs and the economy

Less than 1% view "Antitrust and regulating large corporations" as a priority.

The majority of Americans agree that aggressive antitrust lawsuits threaten to stifle innovation.

They want the Trump administration to prioritize helping U.S. tech and consumers compete globally with rivals like China.

Americans want President Trump to take a different path from Biden's progressive, anti-business, and anti-growth agenda.

Voters would be more likely to support political candidates that support promoting American innovation and tech leadership.

Voters support American tech leadership, see it as key to our global competitiveness, and want President Trump's administration to prioritize the economy, jobs, and innovation—not antitrust.
